Under Construction

"Each one of us is a work in progress. We are all, indefinitely, under construction."

For the past two years we have seen the beautiful trees that kept our school cool, removed, leaving the whole area cleared. We saw that space dug up and then filled with concrete. For some time now, we have heard the sounds of men outside, hard at work. Scaffolding went up and then brick and glass. This construction process we have been witness to is much like the construction of our own lives. We began as only frames. Over the course of the past four years, we've added to ourselves and we've grown. We have been hard at work, building ourselves into what we will be, successful and confident and good. But the job is not quite done. There are many stages left to go, many additions and improvements yet to come.

We are, in short, still and always building towards the future.

Only change if it would benefit you and those around you. Remember, when all else fails, trust in God, the everlasting Father. He will bring you through all the obstacles in life. "This season was very interesting. We had a lot of ups and downs; but when it mattered everyone stepped up and did what they had to do.

We started with a full team and by the end we had only 7 players. But that didn't matter because the last 7 standing were the soldiers."

Baby Photos

When we were babies we'd cry all day
We'd eat, sleep, and poop as we may
On our mothers is where we'd lay
And when we were happy we would jump & play
Our parents would protect us with the world
Even on days when we hurled
They watch and smile as their child grows
And when they see us their face still glows
